The half distance race runs from the Smiths Falls Detached lock station to the Corktown Footbridge in Ottawa. Race maps are available on-line from the K2O website.

The race course includes large lakes (particularly in the first half), rivers and locks. Racers must take necessary precautions when paddling, especially in navigation channels that are shared with boaters.

All portages at lock stations along the course must be portaged by participants following the marked portage routes. Detailed information of each lock station is available from the K2O website. At lock stations where multiple locks are in-flight, participants may portage the entire distance or re-enter water as they see fit.

Racers must portage around all lock stations using the prescribed portage routes. Four lock stations have been designated as official checkpoints (Chaffey's Lock #37, Smiths Falls Detached Lock #31, Burritts Rapids Lock #17 and Long Island Lock #16). At these lock stations racers must provide their team number to the attending officials.

Lock station facilities are shared with other user groups such as pleasure boaters. Racers must be aware of possible boat wash and significant activity around lock stations, particularly during the day.

Racers must obey the instructions from safety guides posted at major road crossings. As deemed necessary, safety guides may require you to wait before crossing the road. Penalties will be assigned to teams who do not follow safety guide instructions. Necessary precautions must be taken when crossing other minor roads at various lock stations.

Portaging assistance may be provided for some paddlers as described in section 6.6 of this document.

6.5 Relays

Participants may choose to attempt the challenge as a relay. To participate in the relay category, a team must be registered as a relay team – straight through teams may not convert to relay after the race start.

Relay exchanges may only be performed at the 3 specified relay exchange lock stations. Incoming paddlers will paddle their craft to the start of the relay lock station, take their craft out of the water and portage their craft across the lock station to the relay exchange marker. The relay exchange will only take place once the incoming craft has completed the portage.

Relay teams may exchange paddlers in any order. That is, the section of the race each of the paddlers will race are left to the relay team's discretion and are not required to be declared. Relay paddlers may race more than one leg. Not all registered paddlers are required to race a leg.

Crafts can be exchanged at designated relay lock stations at the relay exchange marker.

The relay exchange lock stations are:

- Chaffey's Lock #37 (53.4km)
- Smiths Falls Detached Lock #31 (104.7km)
- Burritts Rapids Lock #17 (138.1km)

6.6 Support

The Kingston to Ottawa 200 is a supported canoe marathon. Racers can have a support team to provide food, drinks, medicine, clothing, ice, or other items which they require. Support teams can provide support from all lock stations and sites that are accessible to the public.

Non-registered boats, including motorboats, cannot follow, lead or be used to provide assistance to any racer throughout the race.

Portaging Support for Adventure Class - Support crews can provide portaging assistance to racers. This includes lifting the craft out of the water, portaging it around the lock station, and putting the craft back in the water. Portaging devices (e.g. portaging trailers) are allowed to be used by Adventure class racers and their support crews.

Portaging Support for Competitive Class - Assistance of any form which would help the progress of a craft on the race course, including but not limited to, portaging, lifting a craft out of water, pushing or pulling a craft are not permitted. While support crews may bring portaging trailers for competitive racers, they may not assist in lifting or tying down the craft. The only exceptions to this rule is at Old Slys and Long Island lock stations where assistance may be provided. Assistance in holding the craft for the purpose of stabilizing the boat is permitted.

6.7 Resignation

A team may resign from the race at any time by contacting race officials and completing a resignation form. Race officials must be informed at the earliest possible time.
